

Stringfellow Barr, President, St John's College
 Jacques Barzun, Associate Professor of History, Columbia University
 John Frederick Dashiell, Kenan Professor of Psychology and Head of Department of Psychology, University of North Carolina
 Cora DuBois, Anthropologist, Sarah Lawrence College
 Marcel Breuer, Assistant Professor of Architecture, School of Design, Harvard University
 C F Tucker Brooke, Sterling Professor of English, Yale University
 Philip Putnam Chase, Lecturer in American History and Chairman of the Board of History Tutors, Harvard University
 C Harold Gray, Dean, Bard College
 Calvin Bryce Hoover, Professor of Economics, Duke University
 Louis C Hunter, Professor of American History, American University
 Cecil Johnson, Assistant Professor of History, University of North Carolina
 Donald M MacKinnon, Associate Professor of Psychology, Bryn Mawr College
 William J Mitchell, Assistant Professor of Music, Columbia University
 Robert R Palmer, Assistant Professor of History, Princeton University
 Frank Allen Patterson, Professor of English, Columbia University
 H Jeffrey Smith, Instructor of Philosophy, Columbia University
 Corydon Perry Spruill, Jr, Professor of Economics, University of North Carolina
 Alfred Thurber West, Director of Dramatics, Duke University

Length of Stay

A student's course of study usually takes four years, of which two, generally, are spent in the Junior Division. However, length of stay at the College depends upon achievement rather than upon a residence requirement. During the war Black Mountain College offers an accelerated program. (See Annual Announcements).

COMMUNITY WORK

The work contributed by all members of the community includes construction and maintenance, work on the farm and on the grounds, assistance in the work shops, the office, and the library. Outdoor work takes the place of organized athletics. Records are kept as for academic subjects since the work is considered part of the student's education. Community work is a step toward making the College independent of outside support.